CUEVAS' QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The eyes of many Hancock Countians will be on their television sets Saturday when Brett Favre leads the Green Bay Packers against the Detroit Lions in the first-round National Football Playoffs.

Brett, a standout at Hancock North Central in high school and also at the University of Southern Mississippi, is now making big waves in the professional ranks.

It is great for a father, Irvin Favre, to have coached his son in the fundamentals of football through high school, then see him become a success in college, followed by becoming a star quarterback in the pros.

Green Bay may be a long way from the Mississippi Gulf Coast, but one thing is for sure, a person from Hancock County has sure made a difference for the professional football team.

Green Bay has a lot of supporters in Hancock County, the home of its star quarterback, Brett Favre.

Green Bay has been around a long time. There is also another small tie-in to Hancock County, as Bill Hilliker of Bay St. Louis was the quarterback for the franchise when it moved from New York to Green Bay.

Hilliker said he stayed in New York, giving up football so he could continue playing professional basketball, as there was more money in it at the time.

Brett has already set season team pass completions and pass touchdown records in his short tenure at Green Bay.

I, like many Hancock Countians, wish Brett and Green Bay the best in the playoffs.

Brett has family members, along with friends, many of whom he played high school football with and against in Hancock County and along the Coast, and I am sure they will be pulling for him too.

I understand the game between Green Bay and Detroit is set to start at 11:30 a.m., our time.

Have you recycled your Christmas tree?

Estimates I have read report approximately 50% of Christmas trees used now are live trees (of course they are not live after being cut down).

This means there are thousands of live trees which can be recycled right here in Hancock County.

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Beautification Committee is once again sponsoring Christmas tree recycling.

The chamber's efforts are being supported by Mississippi Power Company, The Sea Coast Echo, Sun Herald, Asplundh Tree Experts, Hancock County Board of Supervisors and BFI Services Group.

An area near the Hancock County Civic Center, Longfellow Drive, will be roped off for residents to place their Christmas trees.

They are asked to remove lights, ornaments and tinsel.

The collection will be the week of January 2-7.

Trees submitted will be ground up and used throughout the county on beautification projects. So the remains will be put to good use, not to mention the amount of space saved in landfill dumps.

As most of you know, landfill areas are being limited more and more each year, so we have to recycle whatever we can in order to save the few landfill areas we still have.

As an added bonus, those who drop a tree off to be recycled can drop by the chamber's office at 412 Highway 90, Suite #6, Bay St. Louis, Jan. 3-7, and receive a seedling complimentary of Mississippi Power Company. Seedlings will be available while supply lasts.

I am hoping the roped-off area will be overflowing with trees to be ground for mulch.

This is a good way to start off the new year.

If you haven't already, it is sure time for you to think about preparing your list of New Year's resolutions.

There are those who come up with a long list, while others may only have one or two.

I am told the people who have one or two, will probably keep them longer than those with a long list.

I feel it is good to make New Year's resolutions, as all of us may have a habit or two we would like to rid ourselves from.

This is a time when many smokers try to kick the habit. It can be done, but it really takes willpower.

I can remember the number of times I tried to quit smoking and how I would keep coming back.

Finally, about 28 years ago, I made up my mind that I was going to quit once and for all. I awoke at night several times as if I were on fire, but was lucky enough to kick the habit 'cold turkey' as the saying goes.

Good luck to everyone who makes New Year's resolutions, and I am hoping you are able to keep them.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

Balance regulatory costs with benefits

The Harvard Center for Risk Analysis has released a study concentrating on "cost-effectiveness" ratios for 500 strategies in saving lives — or at least extending lives. The strategies include everything from flammability standards for children's pajamas to the control of radionuclide emissions at uranium fuel cycle facilities.

The study found that, "While the median Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) rule costs $68,000/life-year saved, the median Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) rule costs more than 100 times more or $7,629,000/life-year saved."

It is important to note that a "life-year" is not a life, but rather, it is only one year of one life. So, the EPA interventions cost society some $7.5 million on the average just to save one year of one person's life. However, the EPA's chloroform private well emission standard at just 48 pulp mills costs $99 billion just to save one year of one person's life.

In fact, of the 500 interventions studied, environmentally based controls accounted for nine of the ten most expensive.

The programs use a lot of big words and sound rather complicated, but the questions the study raises are really quite simple.

The question is not whether extending people's lives is a worthy endeavor — of course it is. The question is — as the researchers put it — "whether it makes sense to spend millions of dollars per year of life saved on program X when program Y costs only thousands of dollars per year of life saved."

The EPA should start asking the same question whenever it embarks on any project.

The perennial issues of crime and corrections, state finances and economic development may be among the priority concerns again when the Mississippi Legislature meets in January for its last regular session of the 1992-96 term.

Education, Medicaid funding, possible tax cuts, and a proposed constitutional amendment to limit terms of public officials also will be vying for Legislators' attention during the 90-day session which begins at noon Tuesday, Jan. 3.

Scores of bills already have been prefiled in the House and Senate. Overall, more than 3,000 bills and resolutions are expected to be introduced before the closing gavel, dealing with everything from proposals to improve health care programs to strengthen fire protection in rural areas.

The session is scheduled to end April 2 unless an extension becomes necessary. While it is the final regular session of this four-year term, it will be the third regular session since special court-ordered elections were held in 1992 under a newly enacted legislative redistricting plan.

Other wide-ranging issues may include changes in campaign finance laws; "open enrollment" at institutions of higher learning; adoption of a Uniform State Food Act recommended by state health officials; a bill to tighten the Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act aimed at reducing the number of uninsured motorists in the state; proposals to boost agriculture, with emphasis on processing and marketing of farm and forestry products; possible revisions in banking statutes related to federal interstate banking laws; an alcohol boating safety law; changes in drunk driving laws; child care programs in schools; an increase in the sales tax diversion to municipalities; an "Open Primary" election system; proposals by an interim study committee to improve public building procedures; and a constitutional amendment to require a 3/5ths vote for passage of legislation mandating local expenditures for new programs.

Bills have been prepared for introduction that would set up a new court system to handle drug cases, beginning as a pilot project in selected areas; authorize a grant program to assist in construction of local livestock facilities; create a state Racing Commission; and prohibit smoking in public buildings.

Crime is still a paramount concern among both legislators and private citizens around the state. Numerous bills were approved in 1994 — some during the regular session and others in a nine-day special session in August — in an effort to crack down on crime and authorize new correctional facilities to reduce crowding in state prisons and jails and get violent offenders off the streets.

More anti-crime legislation is anticipated in the coming session, combined with increased funding to defray operating costs associated with the prison building program.

Bills may be offered aimed at helping to deal with the basic causes of crime, promote strong family ties, further strengthen laws involving juvenile crime and school violence, revise death penalty laws, prohibit plea bargaining for habitual offenders, allow a sentence of "caning" for certain crimes, and provide funds to hire 10 new state narcotics agents and create a special squad of investigators to target big-time drug offenders.

A joint legislative Parole Commission, created during the August special session, has been taking a hard look at phasing out the state parole system starting in 1995, and establishing a "truth-in-sentencing" plan that would require most convicted felons to serve at least 85 percent of their sentences.

The allocation of funds to operate state agencies and institutions is one of the Legislature's chief responsibilities. Overall, Mississippi's economy remains strong with collections for the state's General Fund continuing to run higher than anticipated, but agency requests — as usual — exceed anticipated revenues for the coming year.

The Legislative Budget Committee has recommended a "priority-needs" state budget totaling $7.220 billion in general and special funds for Fiscal Year 1996, starting July 1, 1995. The recommendations include $2.613 billion in General Fund expenditures, an increase of $14.7 million over FY 1995, with a projected year-ending balance of $9.6 million on June 30, 1996.

The budget proposals to be presented to the 1995 session contain $120.6 million for built-in increases including $52 million for the mammoth Medicaid health care program, largely to offset an expected drop in federal funds related to new federal restrictions on transfer payments from hospitals.

Other proposed outlays include $25 million to assist local governments in repairing deficient bridges under a program initiated in 1994; $15 million for repair and renovation of state-owned buildings; an increase of $39.7 million for correctional programs; an additional $24 million for debt service costs; and $10 million in student financial aid for a new scholarship program to help make higher education more accessible to Mississippi students. The Legislature will make the final decisions on these and other budget recommendations.

There have been significant gains in education and economic development programs over the past three years, and both will be top issues again in the coming legislative session. The Budget Committee has recommended $981.4 million in general and special funds for support of public schools through the Minimum Foundation Program in FY 1995, an increase of $13.5 million.

A separate budget plan has been prepared by Governor Kirk Fordice, totaling $2.612 billion in General Fund spending with increased for the prison expansion program, Medicaid and debt service. The Governor is recommending $25 million for bridge rehabilitation, $10 million for repairs and renovations, and a $67 million bond issue for capital improvement projects.

Among the key items in the Governor's Budget proposal is $11.2 million that would be earmarked for income tax cuts starting in January 1996, the first step in a three-year plan to trim taxes by $77.6 million by raising taxpayers' exemptions. Others have suggested cutting sales taxes on groceries in lieu of an income tax reduction.

The Governor has indicated he will seek legislative approval of several other measures, including truth-in-sentencing for violent offenders and other crime-related bills, public referendums on tax increases, a "local rule" system for schools with greater flexibility going to local districts, and various proposals involving public welfare programs.

The hotly disputed matter of privatization in some welfare programs also is likely to draw more debate in 1995. Under a compromise bill approved in the August special session, the Department of Human Services was allowed to continue privatization of child support collections in Hinds and Warren counties, but not expand into other areas without legislative approval. A detailed report must be submitted to legislators on how well privatization is working in the pilot counties.

It looks like another exciting and challenging session.

Jubilee Casino to introduce gourmet restaurant vessel

Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino will open "The Captain's Table," a 40-seat gourmet restaurant, to the public on Sunday, Jan. 1 from 5 to 10 p.m. aboard the Bayou Caddy Jubilee, a 95-foot, three-deck dinner vessel.

The restaurant will feature specially aged and selected USDA prime ribs and steak, fresh seafood dishes and an extensive wine list.

Executive Chef Terry Newkirk, director of food operations for the casino, said Bayou Caddy's 190-seat restaurant, Buffet Royale, is filled to capacity on a consistent basis, and the Bayou Caddy Jubilee will serve as the perfect avenue to meet dining needs.

"From the day we opened we have had a reputation for the best food on the Gulf Coast, and this will be an extension of that service," Newkirk said.

According to marketing director Jay Boyd, the Bayou Caddy Jubilee will provide the first rate dining experience people have come to expect from Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino. "Not only will the Captain's Table meet our customers' expectations in regard to fine dining at Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino, but they will have an opportunity to enjoy the atmosphere of the Gulf aboard the ship," Boyd said.

A second restaurant, "The Jubilation Seafood Cafe," is scheduled to open in late January and will feature delicious smoked BBQ pork ribs, smoked prime ribs, fresh soups and salads, New Orleans-style po-boys and seasonal fresh seafood.

The Bayou Caddy's Jubilee, which recently underwent six weeks of renovations, was formerly the Captain Anderson out of St. Petersburg, Fla.

"One must remember, the area the office is to serve has had tremendous growth from 1983 to 1993, and that growth continues," Purvis stated.

Purvis added, "Households have increased 26.2%; population, 35.9%; number of vehicles, 165.9%; and median household income, 26% for that ten-year period, and the growth continues."

The staff at the State Farm Claims office in Biloxi at Cedar Lake at Interstate 10 was beefed up when plans were made to open an office in Bay St. Louis, Purvis said.

On the other end of the Coast, a claims office was opened by State Farm only two years ago at Pascagoula.

State Farm has three insurance agents in Hancock County and Picayune, two in Long Beach, and one each in Pass Christian and Wiggins.

Purvis said Ronnie Artigues Construction Company is the builder of the new office.

ger's desk. It was unplugged and installed in the guest's room. (More points piled up).

Glavan said the guest likes to take his wife to casinos to gamble—but he routinely stays behind and reads books while she's busy.

"Most hotels wouldn't go so far to please a guest," Glavan said.

Casino Magic officials launched construction of their new inn in hopes of creating sorely-needed overnight accommodations before constructing what's planned to be a high rise hotel.

The new facility is geared to accommodate the casino's air and bus charter program, featuring transportation and lodging packages for out-of-state gamblers.

Glavan said the program gets in full swing Jan. 15 — airfare and two days' accommodations range from $149 to $199 from such cities as Houston and Atlanta. There are three deluxe suites at the inn, featuring large screen television, upscale furniture, bars, refrigerators, microwave and stereo systems. Those rooms also feature balconies that overlook what one day will be golf course greens.

Glavan said 21 "junior suites" are slightly smaller in scope.

Other features of the inn include a continental breakfast area in each of the two buildings, with seating for 35. There are adjoining service bar facilities and a 1,500-square foot "function room" accommodates 150 people.

Glavan said the facilities will be available to serve not only inn residents, but also for locally-based functions.

"We're very interested in getting involved in our community, and letting them get involved in our facilities," said Glavan.

Warning: Don't Be Fooled By Appearances!

The fact is, even one drink of alcohol can significantly alter your good judgement. That means even if you or a friend appears to be okay, reaction time could be slowed enough to make a critical difference should a split-second decision need to be made.

This holiday season, don't take unnecessary chances. Use the designated driver system, public transportation, call a taxi or stay overnight. Or be a trendsetter by hosting an alcohol-free New Year's party in your home.

Whatever you do, DON'T drink and drive. We want to see you again next year.

HIGHLIGHTS

We're in the business of picking games right, but this Bowl season we're almost willing to get a couple of key games wrong if it might help fix the silly method by which the national champion is determined.

If Nebraska beats Miami in the Orange Bowl and Penn State, our No. 1 team, beats Oregon in the Rose Bowl, the arguing over who deserves to be No. 1 will begin.

It's an argument no one wins, and so it doesn't get us anywhere. Sadly, we may have reached the point where the interests of college football and its fans would be better served by the much louder and angrier debate that would ensue if both favorites lost.

That's highly unlikely, but wouldn't it be the best argument yet for some system of college playoffs?

Of course, if one of the two remaining undefeated teams wins and the other loses, the choice for No. 1 is clear. But that lucky break wouldn't do the game much good either, because those who oppose playoffs would be off the hood for another year.

And it could happen. The Nittany Lions should have a relatively easy time with the Ducks, but Nebraska will have its hands full in the Orange Bowl, where the Hurricanes have won 62 of their last 63 games.

So if you don't have a favorite, root for or against both Penn State and Nebraska and chant along with us: We . . . want . . . playoffs.

Our forecasting average held steady throughout the fall. We picked a total of 2,377 games, and got 1,756 of them right (with 35 ties), a percentage of 750.

We close the season with our annual ranking of the top 20 college conferences, based on the average of our power quotients for the teams in each conference across the country. Why is Penn State of No. 1 team? Because it played in the nation's toughest conference. Here's the breakdown:

- |                      |      |

| 1. Big Ten           | 95.7 |

Agreement made to facilitate NASA technology to Jackson Medical Center

Agreement made

USM gets Stennis research contracts

The Center for Ocean and Atmospheric Modeling has been awarded four research contracts totalling almost $1 million.

COAM, a division of the University of Southern Mississippi, specializes in studying, analyzing and developing models that can be used to better understand the earth's ocean environments.

The four research contracts include:

— A $111,534 contract awarded by the Department of the Navy through the Office of Naval Research to Dr. Ranjit M. Passi, principal investigator.

This contract supports a graduate student who will work on the Semi-Enclosed and Coastal Ocean/Atmosphere Simulation Technology project with an emphasis on the development of a modeling program that can focus on certain regions and features in the Mediterranean Sea.

— A $59,180 contract awarded by the Department of the Navy through the Naval Research Laboratory to Robert Willem, principal investigator.

This contract involves data assimilation and model evaluation experiments designed to keep up with all ongoing field experiments in ocean modeling for their significance and their nowcast/forecast capabilities.

— A $93,401 contract awarded to Passi by the Department of the Navy through the Office of Naval Research, designed to address coastal data assimilation correlation length scale studies.

Susan Sprouse of COAM is serving as program coordinator for all four projects.

This project is designed to establish under NRE a visiting scientist-postdoctoral program with the marine sciences at USM.

The purpose is to help create the next generation of highly-trained ocean modelers who are tuned to the needs of the U.S. Navy.

— A $636,794 contract awarded by the Department of the Navy, office of Naval Research, to Dr. Ziv Sirkes, principal investigator, and Willem, co-investigator.

Roy Estess, director of NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center, and Dr. Wallace Conerly, vice chancellor of the University of Mississippi's Medical Center in Jackson, signed a memorandum of understanding yesterday at the space center.

The agreement between the space agency and the medical center is aimed at developing opportunities for NASA through Stennis Space Center to work with the University of Mississippi's Medical Center in two major areas - education and technology.

"The University of Mississippi's Medical Center is on the cutting edge of technology."

"The University of Mississippi's Medical Center is on the cutting edge of technology in many areas. This agreement will serve to further assist the development of this technology by linking NASA engineering and research capabilities with this excellent institution," said Estess.

Of benefit to education, the agreement will enable the development of cooperative programs in areas such as health and medicine. It is hoped that these programs will reach kindergartners through post-graduate students and lifelong learning students throughout the state, as well as teachers and faculty.

In the area of technology, this agreement will strengthen the relationship that already exists between NASA and the medical center and will enhance the sharing of NASA's technology resources especially in the areas of communications and research. The agreement will provide the medical center with access to information which should help them maximize the use of telecommunications in the medical field.

Conerly remarked, "This agreement is going to open the door for other medical centers and space centers to cooperate in research efforts, especially in the fields of biomedical sciences and biomaterials." He added, "We have an untapped resource in NASA, and we should be able to parlay this into some major research efforts."

Stennis Space Center will also be transferring strategic management processes to those involved in the medical center's management so that they can benefit from the space agency's strategic management approach.

Dr. David Power, manager of Stennis Space Center education affairs, commented, "More and more, NASA is becoming a major participant in education, providing information and technology derived through and from the space program to enhance education. Stennis Space center sees the transfer of such information and technology into local education systems and institutions as one of its primary missions."

Also present at the signing were Dr. Suman Das, professor and chairman of the division of plastic surgery; Hari Cohly, assistant professor and research director of the division of plastic surgery; and Dr. Ralph Powe, vice president of research at Mississippi State University in Starkville.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Happy New Year to all the fishing buddies out there in hook and line land. The Turtle hopes that Santa Fisherman has been good to you. And now you have all kinds' new neat stuff that you are just antsy to try out on the finned creatures.

With the best fishin' about four months away, there has to be some place to try out the new gear other than the bathtub. But the places where the fish are biting are severely limited this time of year.

The only report I am getting are from places where you can find deep water. We did have one report of some strange-looking guy trolling out in the Bay, but we felt the report was the result of too much holiday cheer. I mean, who ever heard of a boat running on two little skis, with open sides and being powered not by an outboard, but listen to this, being pulled by a heard of reindeer.

I am sorry, but I have a hard time believing a boat built like that is seaworthy. Besides, whoever heard of deer that could walk on water while pulling a boat.

Now that I have that out of the way, I gotta' tell y'all that the only places that are reporting catches of saltwater fish are Jourdan River, Bayou Caddy and Pearl River.

There are a few reports that the areas around the offshore oil rigs are producing fish like crazy when the weather lets you get out. But you gotta' watch the weather real close-like if you plan on going to the offshore rigs.

Finally, there are some reports of nice catches of winter red fish being caught in the Louisiana Marsh.

The number one spot, in terms of the number of reports of fish caught, this past week has been the Jourdan River. Nice trout are being caught in the river from the I-10 bridge all the way to the mouth of the river in Bay St. Louis.

The trout by the mouth of the river, by Casino Magic, are responding best to the square baits with the dots on them. This bait works best when the numbers on the dots add up to either seven or eleven. Now how did that bait get in this column?

Back to the real baits producing trout in the Jourdan River. The beetle in purple color has been the best producer, followed by the Thin Fin in natural perch and the Mirror Lure 52M18.

If you can find some live cacaos, try them about six feet under a

Don't fish in your bathtub

cork, or on a sliding sinker on the bottom, on a falling tide, on the down stream side of where the cut and bayous enter into the Jourdan River.

Remember you gotta' find the deep water 'cause the fish don't have antifreeze and need to go deep to keep from catching cold.

The best way to fish the rivers and bayous in the winter is to troll sloowly in the deeper sections of the canals and bayous. The slow trolling method keeps the bait close to the bottom where the fish are setting up housekeeping.

Another consideration for slow trolling is that the metabolism of the fish slows down in cold weather. This means that the fish don't move fast. So they don't cover as much ground as they would if the water was warm. (I will get to the point eventually).

The point of all this is: you need to slow down your whole operation to catch winter fish; slow trolling, slow retrieving of your bait, and all that stuff.

Before I leave you this week I gotta' tell you that the oysters are great right now. Not only great, but they are good-tasting, fat and salty. Which leads me to a recipe for oyster stew that you might want to try to warm up the body on a cold winter day:

One quart of milk (or Half and Half)

1 pint of oysters

3 tablespoons butter

3 tablespoons crushed crackers

Oyster liquor

Salt and pepper to taste

Heat the milk to a simmer on a low flame, add the crushed crackers and oyster liquor.

Melt butter in a separate sauce pan, add he oysters to the melted butter.

Cook the oysters until their edges begin to curl, stirring constantly. Add salt and pepper to taste. Mix thoroughly and pour mixture into the hot milk.

Simmer the whole thing on low heat for about 5 minutes and serve. Serves four people or one Turtle.

This week's wonderful wise words: Don't always take the word of people who use sleighs pulled by reindeer as to where they caught fish.

I wonder how many horsepower a reindeer has, Turtle.

But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control.

Galatians 5:22-23
How hard this is to do Lord. Everything seems to be measured by time, yet I know there are those whose lives are in need of Your love. Help me move outside of time and carry Your hope to those You put into my path daily. Amen.

The straight and narrow path has no traffic problems. Enter through the narrow gate. For wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction. But small is the gate and narrow the one that leads to life.

Matthew 7:13-14

Life holds no sweeter thing than this: To teach a little child the tale most loved on earth.

And watch the wonder deepen in his eyes.

The while you tell him of Christ Child's birth.

The while you tell of shepherds and a song,

Of gentle beasts and fragrant hay

On which the starlight night in Bethlehem

God's tiny son and His young mother lay.

—Adelaide Love

Schindler named All-Conference

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Beau Schindler, of Bay St. Louis, has been named to the Skyline All-Conference team. Schindler scored 8 goals and had 2 assists for the United States Merchant Marine Academy.

Over the past two years, he has scored 11 goals and netted 15 assists. He is described by his coach as a "creative midfielder and has the knack for putting the ball in the net."

Schindler has been named as a team captain for the 1995 season. Coach Smolens stated, "His technical ability allows him to create for his teammates, but I am pleased that this year he created for himself. It just proves he has the ability to score, and we will be counting on him next year to lead us."

Kings Point finished the season at 10-5-2. They earned a No. 2 seed in the Eastern College Athletic Conference Tournament. In Skyline Conference play, Kings Point posted a 4-0-1 record en route to the second Skyline Conference title in the four year history of the conference.

Schindler is a graduate of St. Stanislaus in Bay St. Louis and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emile A. Schindler, Jr., of Bay St. Louis.

Tips On Writing EFFECTIVE Classified Ads

STICK TO THE FACTS

Prospective buyers need to know details, like the condition of the item for sale, the size, brand name, color and any other relevant information that would help them make a decision.

BE HONEST

Aside from being unethical, exaggerating or misinforming potential buyers won't help you make a sale, and may only serve to lose a prospective buyers' trust. Even if they come to look at what you have to sell, they'll be less likely to buy the item or trust you once they see they've been misled.

SPELL IT OUT

Abbreviations are not easily understood by many people and may even confuse a reader. It only takes them a second to pass over an ad because it doesn't seem clear. Why let it be yours because you abbreviated a description?

THE BOTTOM LINE

State the price. You'll save yourself the hassle of having to answer calls from prospects who, upon learning the price, are not really interested. Price is the first thing they'll look for when reading your ad, and when prospects know the price, you'll know you have a serious buyer on the line.

BE THERE

List the best hours to call and make sure you're at home. If you don't list a specific time, you could be flooded with calls any time of the day or night. And when you're not at home to take calls, most likely, they won't call back.

ASK US

If you aren't sure how to word your ad or what features to include, why not ask us? Our professionals on staff know how to create an effective ad that sells, they're always willing to help, and there's no charge!
